Jesse Norman,

The Spending Review I delivered today has committed to provide dedicated support for the development of a new university focused on engineering at Hereford so that it can secure launch funding in 2016, subject to a business case. I hope this will allow the institution to start teaching the engineering students of the future that our country needs before the end of the Parliament.

Following our meeting earlier in the month I wanted to let you know immediately about this positive news for your local area. In this Spending Review we had to take some difficult decisions to make sure Britain lives within its means, but it also means we can deliver on our priorities like this. Please don't hesitate to get in touch if you want more details.

Best wishes,

George
